Expansion Planned By Baptist With $4 Million Budget

The 18th annual session of the Alabama Baptist State Convention, meeting in Birmingham Nov. 15-17, OK'd a new $4,000,000 Baptist building in Montgomery, approved a $1.5 million in loans for Howard College and Judson College dormitories, gave the go-ahead signal for a Baptist College in Mobile; approved a revised budget; and projected a five year advance program.

No Action Taken
Early in the morning, Dr. Leon Macen, editor of the Alabama Baptist, state d. m. n. l. newspaper, submitted a resolution pledging full cooperation to President John F. Kennedy, while at the same time reaffirming belief in the principle of separation of church and state. On the closing day of the meeting, the resolutions committee did not report out the Macen resolution.

According to a spokesman for the resolutions committee, "It was felt best not to bring the matter up at this time." Earlier in the week, press reports in the convention city erroneously reported that "Baptists endorse Kennedy." Although this mistake was later corrected, the feeling was that the resolution had nullified its effect.

No Longer
G. W. Rude, of Grapeland, shocked the delegates Wednesday by saying "This country is no longer a free nation." Rude, also president of the Convention, and chairman of the Christian Life Commission, said "We must expect to live in a free country and we must be used to it and like it the way it has been our heritage."

Riding warned "We can expect an anti-Communist surge coming on a rapid scale level and quite a bit of communism as well."
On Tuesday afternoon of the meeting, Dr. A. Hamilton Reid, executive secretary of the Alabama Baptist State Convention, was honored at the dedication of the new chapel on the Howard College campus. Named the A. H. Reid Chapel, it is one of the most beautiful buildings on the campus.

Officers
Officers elected Wednesday afternoon were Dr. Howard M. Reeves, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Mobile, president; H. E. Catey, Oxford, first vice president; and Dr. John H. Thomas, Troy, second vice president.

Coach Bill Strickland Begins Training For Promising Season

Coach Bill Strickland's Elba Tiger basketball team began practice last week in preparation for a season which has been forecast as promising.

Five returning lettermen greeted Strickland, including post men Robert Parker and Johnny Looklar, forward Gary Hudson, and guards Ronnie Young and Jim Sander. Also up from the Bee team are several promising players including Rudy Strickland, including post men Robert Parker and Johnny Looklar, forward Gary Hudson, and guards Ronnie Young and Jim Sander.

Coach Strickland will release his season schedule next week.

Like our Pilgrim forefathers, the people of Elba, Coffee County and South Alabama can give thanks today for bountiful crops.

Although there has been a downward movement on the business charts, we have escaped the full impact because our crops this year were unusually good, thanks to Divine Providence. And in Coffee County the farms are still on a par with industry as a source of income.

While many parts of the country that depend completely upon industry have suffered severe, Elba and the rest of Coffee County has enjoyed above-the-average prosperity—thanks to the farms and thanks to God.

Merchants Favor Half-Day Closing To Be Wednesday

Forty-two merchants in Elba have signed a paper in favor of changing the city's weekly half holiday from Thursday to Wednesday afternoon. It was announced yesterday by Wal-Mart member of a Chamber of Commerce committee appointed to determine the propriety of the change.

Mr. Smith said that every merchant and business in Elba were in favor of the change. The overwhelming sentiment was in favor of closing Wednesday afternoon instead of Thursday afternoon.

Month's Delay Set To Begin To Pay Pennies To Park

Elba City Council voted Monday this week to resume enforcement of parking meter regulations but granted a delay of a month before anti-automobile parking tickets can be issued to motorists in the city's downtown area.

Councilmen have tossed the issue around like a hot potato since they took office two months ago with a discussion of the subject sometimes taking as long as an hour at a meeting.

Lindsey Opposed
Voicing in favor of the motion were Councilmen Smith, Murphy, Taylor and Zigar with Councilman J. L. Lindsey in opposition. Mayor Don Roberts was only when there is a tie.

Early in the new administration, councilmen explored the subject of returning the meters to the seller but city attorneys, after examining the terms of the contract, said it could not be broken. The contract provides that the seller receive half the returns from the meters until the purchase price is paid.

Refer To Contract
The motion, drawn by Councilman Smith, adopted this week reads: "Due to the fact that a binding contract for the rental maintenance and enforcement of parking meters was made on the 25th of November, 1957, by City Council of Elba with the Duncan Parking Meter Corp. and the fact the contract is in full force and effect, the council will not consider the subject of returning the meters to the seller."

"Should any request for the removal of certain meters in front of residences and churches be made by the property owner or owners concerned, the council will be pleased to consider the request."

6th Annual National Farm - City Week Is Observed In U. S.

Sixth Annual National Farm City Week is being observed Nov. 18-24 to promote better understanding between rural and urban people, according to T. C. Self and Billy Taylor, of the Soil Conservation Service here.

"Coffee county is basically a farm county," said Mr. Self. "Most communities depend on farm income for subsistence. For this reason we should do what we can to keep our farm income from decreasing each year, the farmer remains the most important producer in this country."

Tires Stolen From Trailers At Dorsey

Seventy tires were stolen off the highway vans and trailers in the wire fence enclosed Dorsey parking lot on Elba-Op highway, within city limits, Tuesday night, last week. Value was placed at $1,800.

The parking lot is enclosed by a heavy wire fence and gate kept locked at night. The thieves cut a few strands in the wire fence, removed the tires from the trailers one by one, and rolled them through the break in the fence.

Why Trade Goes Elsewhere . . .

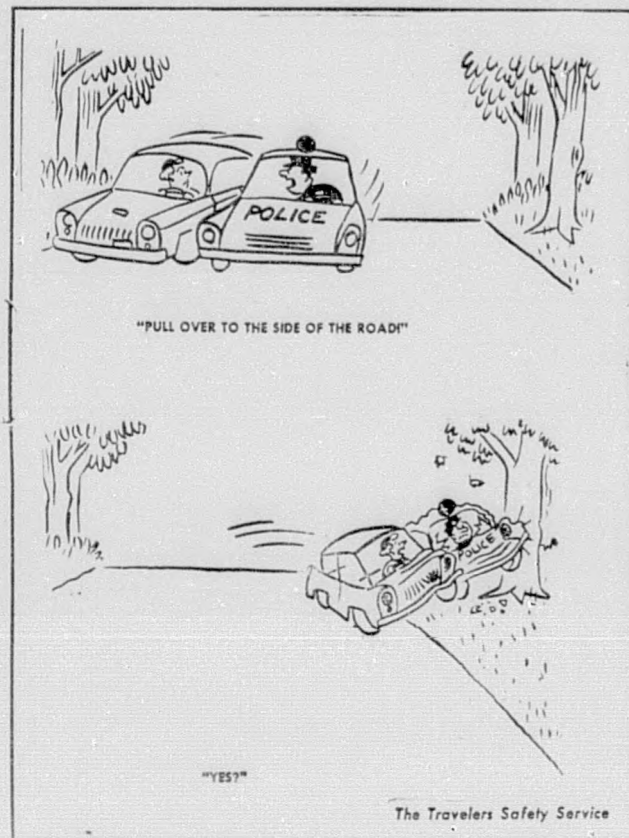

(From The Opp News)

As the ancient ballad tells, for want of a nail a kingdom was lost. A modern paraphrase could be that for want of the right kind of advertising great amounts of business are lost.

The Windsor, Missouri, Review, points out that "The chief competitors of the small city retailers are not other local merchants. His most serious competition comes from nearby metropolitan centers." Prices on standard brands of merchandise, the Review goes on, are virtually the same everywhere. Low overhead sometimes gives the small-town retailer a competitive advantage over the big-city merchant. So the Review asks and answers a question: "Why then, do so many shoppers travel fifty or a hundred miles to buy the same item they could obtain at home for the same price? Many retailers who ask this question should look to themselves to find the blame. Inadequate advertising is likely to be the answer."

The merchant who just opens his doors and waits for the customer to enter, without attracting them through advertising, is going to do a minimum of business. The merchant who sees to it that people know what he has to offer is going to do the maximum.

Employment Jump Forecast In 60's, Some Lines Lose

Despite short term ups and downs in employment during the 50's, overall employment should rise about 25 percent, with service industries—radio, insurance, etc.—growing faster than production industries—manufacturing and mining—according to Chandler Tins, the Kiplinger Magazine. By 1970, the magazine predicts, workers in service industries will account for as much as 57 percent of the country's entire labor force.

In a copyrighted article in the current issue of the magazine the editors note that this is a continuation of a basic change in the labor force that took place during the last decade when, for the first time in history, service industries had more workers than production industries.

The shift to technical advances, which make it possible to produce goods with fewer workers, and to the rising standard of living, which means that people are able and willing to pay for more services.

Forecast By Lines
Construction: The number of workers will increase much faster than the national average—probably 70 percent or more. Heavy demand will be created by the growing number of households, increasing outlays for schools, hospitals, highways, the rising volume of business construction, and the higher level of personal and corporate incomes. Most jobs will be for craftsmen and skill.

Whether you're buying, selling or renting, it always pays to place a Classified Ad with The Elba Clipper.

ed workers. Finance, insurance, real estate. Expansion will be rapid, 30 per cent or more. Most jobs will be for clerical help, office machine operators, insurance agents. This will be a good field for women office workers.

Retail and Wholesale Trade. Employment is expected to rise about 25 percent. Most jobs will be in retail sales, particularly in the suburban branches of large department stores.

Government Services. Growth will probably be about 15 percent or more, mostly in social and local governments; but the federal government will also continue to need workers. Demand will be for all types of employees.

Other Services. Expect a 25 percent increase. This category includes all professional services. Manufacturing. The rise in this largest industrial employment sector will be around the national average—25 percent. Makers of durable goods will show a faster growth of opportunities than manufacturers of textile, food products and other nondurables. Best breaks will come in industries that develop new products. Transportation and Public Utilities. Growth will be slower than the national average, probably 15 percent or less. Trucking and warehousing firms, as well as air transport companies, will offer good prospects; jobs in electric utilities will grow at a slower than average pace, but rail output will be less than 15 percent. Mining. Employment growth will be less than 15 percent. The number of aluminum and coal workers will decline, but there will be a substantial increase in jobs in the crude petroleum and natural gas industries.

Agriculture. Employment will continue to drop. The farms have felt the most direct effect of the technology advances of this century. However, there will continue to be opportunities for those who turn up to date techniques or become agricultural scientists.

Good Bedding Is 'Must' For Hogs

Auburn — Pig producers who are expecting to have a busy time of their farrowing huts soon are arranging to have a good supply of bedding on hand.

Good bedding is particularly important in chilly fall weather, says G. B. Phillips, Auburn Extension Service specialist in animal industry. Although oat straw is the old standby for bedding busy pigs, it has one definite disadvantage in that it is bulky and heavy. Many farmers are finding that chaffing the straw improves the quality. And others are using sawdust or wood shavings quite effectively, the specialist says.

New Process Makes Any Wool Washable

Auburn — Consumers may look forward to buying all wool washable fabrics in the near future.

United States Department of Agriculture scientists have discovered a new treatment that shrinks wool fabric and makes them safely washable in machines. The process consists of covering wool fibers with a chemical coating. Treated fabrics retain wool's natural soft texture and yet wash without shrinking and dry without wrinkling, says Jeanne Frazier, Auburn Extension clothing specialist.

In laboratory tests the new treatment has proved successful for shrink proofing wool suitings, knitted wear, blankets and other wool goods.

Electric Fence Can Be Deadly Weapon

Auburn — A single strand of electrically charged wire stretched on simple supports around a patch of grazing crop is an innocent looking device for keeping cattle penned in. But such a device, referred to as an electric fence, can be fatal for cattle, children and grownups.

Bill Cox, Auburn Extension engineer, says that a wire stretched on posts with a charge of electricity connected at the source is a booby trap rather than an electric fence. The engineer warns that electricity should be connected to a fence only through a properly built, completely approved electric fence controller which uses only high voltage and very low current. Since this

Alabama Industrial Year Is Best Yet; 288 New Factories

Montgomery — Leland Jones, director of the State Planning and Industrial Development Board, has announced that 1960 is the best year in the history of Alabama's industrial growth.

He based this statement on the fact that 288 new plants and expansions have been announced in the State during the year.

Safe electric controllers are not built by amateur mechanics and electricians, Cox adds.

1960, with a total reported investment of $11,494,500. Additional employment to be created by these new and expanded industrial plants will be 13,753 persons, Jones stated that the figures may be conservative, as actual investment usually exceeds the reported capital investment.

The new plants announced during the 1960 number 124, with total capital investment of $79,644,000 and 6,731 employees. 164 expansions have been announced during the year, with capital investment of $131,820,000 and additional employees numbered 7,155.

The capital investment figure is more than double the reported investment for 1959. Employment also increased. The number of new plants and expansions for 1960 is the largest ever reported in a single year.

Jones noted that new plants or expansions, or both, had been reported from 60 of the State's 67 counties by November 16. This is the widest distribution of new plants and expansions ever reported in Alabama and is significant as indicating the trend of many plants to serve smaller communities as plant sites.

Governor Helps

Jones stated that Governor John Patterson, as chief man of the Development Board, has cooperated in the promotion of industrial growth and has helped in many ways to bring about the fine record achieved in 1960. He also paid tribute to the State Highway Department, whose fine system of highways is a factor in attracting new plants to Alabama, for its cooperation in assisting with new access roads to industrial sites.

Jones again emphasized the importance of local leadership in obtaining industry for the State. He said that it is at the local level that industry sees what a town is really like and makes its final decision on relocating a plant site.

Auburn — Record keeping may be a little time consuming but the practice is well worth while to a poultryman who is not satisfied with his present income.

A poultryman with a good record can easily analyze his total operation and see where improvements need to be made, says J. R. Hubbard your Auburn Extension poultry specialist.

Record-Keeping Is Well Worth Time

Records need not be too complicated, but Hubbard says that they should be complete enough to supply an egg producer with information on the rate of lay per hen, the amount of feed it takes to produce a dozen eggs, the mortality rate of the flock, the cost of production and the amount of sales.

There is a danger of a hard freeze within 24 to 48 hours. Oil emulsions can be bought at most feed and seed stores. The entomologist advises for sprayers to follow directions on the label closely, and to coat all parts of the tree thoroughly since the spray kills insects by smothering them.

'Giant Eye' Symbolizing Research Hope Is Visited by Small Birth Defect's Victim

The lights dim, and in the darkened high-ceilinged room a somber-faced little boy stares at the pilot light of a towering microscope.

This is the electron microscope at Ohio State University Hospital, Columbus, Ohio, a giant, inquiring eye nine feet tall, capable of magnifying the human cell 100,000 times.

The small boy with the rather sad little face is Kevin Sharp, 3½ years, of Grove City, Ohio, who wanted to see a jumbo-sized version of the toy microscope given him on his last birthday by his doctor. Kevin has to see his doctor regularly because he is a victim of spina bifida, or open spine. He is paralyzed from the waist down and cannot play ball—or indeed play much at anything.

Such mobility as he has is made possible by his crutches and leg braces.

Kevin's is one of the significant birth defects the cause of which is being pursued today by The National Foundation for the March of Dimes contributions. Congenital malformations afflict 250,000 infants annually in the United States and are responsible for the deaths of 34,000 babies each year who are stillborn or die within four weeks of birth. The health organization's expanded program also includes arthritis and continued work in polio.

In his excitement while reaching for the eyepiece of the vast instrument, Kevin probably didn't know that in the ultra-powerful lens of this electron microscope, scientists hope some day to pinpoint the cause of the savage embryonic mishap that crippled him before he was born. By comparing normal and abnormal cells under tremendous magnification, researchers hope to discover, for example, why Kevin's spine never fused during his mother's pregnancy, or why some other little boy or girl is born with excess fluid on the brain—another baffling birth defect which The National Foundation is studying.

"At his birth, doctors gave Kevin only a few hours to live," says Mrs. Gerald Sharp, his mother. "In addition to his open spine, he had two clubfeet which are now much improved due to surgery and physical therapy. He is a brave and happy little fellow even if he smiles so rarely. My husband and I thank God that today wider research is being done into birth defects."

She adds somewhat wistfully: "My husband Gerald and I met in an orphanage in Xenia, Ohio. We became childhood sweethearts. Like other young people, we longed to raise a family, and a healthy one.

"Why should this unaccountable accident have happened to us? But we count our blessings. Perhaps fewer Kevins will be born to the next generation. We certainly pray so."

The lights return and, supported by his crutches and braces, solemn little Kevin struggles back from the microscope. But at that moment, looking up at his mother, there's the suggestion of a smile around the corners of his mouth.

Whenever possible, have a cover guard to enclose dangerous machine belts and pulleys.

Wood for the house to be built 50 years from now should be growing in some forest today.
